INTRODUCTION

Writing is a daily activity. Everybody can do writing everywhere and everywhen. Talking about writing skill it means talking about hobby. When someone really interested in writing so the style of writing will be in a good arrangement. The first step that is important for the writer is that by choosing a topic. But in fact, choosing a topic is not so easy as say it. Choosing a topic is very difficult especially for the beginner, sometimes for the writer who has experience it still take so hard. Some consideration in choosing a topic is that the writer have to follow his desire or his hobby. Second, he/she can choosing the topic that can develop his/her creativity. But another consideration is that the writer can choose the topic because of his/her background of the study. That's way the topic is so important as the starting point in write something. Writing can express our idea. In which when someone can not express their idea by speaking, they can express it in writing. Kind of writing in English include the writing of literature. Such as poem, poetry and drama. Writing is the skill that can be read and felt.

Writing is the skill someone can blow up their talent, obsession and ambition. Writing can explore the skill by thinking, express and write. Because of the important of writing, writing is a must in an English subject. Students have to pass the writing subject before they can continue to the last or final writing examination. According to Alice Oshima and Ann Hogue (2007:3) writing is divided into two types such as; academic writing and free writing. In which academic writing is the kind of writing used in high school and college classes, then free writing is the kind of writing used to write letters or e-mails to another friend or family.

GENERAL PROBLEM

In English writing skill the problem always face by someone especially who never write before or rarely in writing English. As the beginner or even the master someone have to know about the rule and grammar in writing an English because both of them are different.

For Academic Writing it needs to consider about:

1. The format; when preparing the assignments, follow the direction after the model.
2. The sentence structure; consider the using of sentence include simple sentence, compound sentence, complex sentence and compound-complex sentence.
3. The organization; the writing process in each step.

For free/creative writing is the easiest one. In which someone doesn't have to think hardly how to create writing. Because in free writing its only need to write freely without stopping until someone lost or stop their idea. Without worrying about the sentence whether it is correct or not.

WRITING RESEARCH METHOD

The teaching of writing as an integrated process will continues as usual, like the teaching of reading, normally be deferred until rather advanced courses in English as a foreign language. While the beginning stage of learning writing, write an exercises generally used simply to strengthen the specific grammatical points or lexical items. Furthermore writing will be treated as end in itself as a complex skill which involve the simultaneous practice of a number of very different abilities. The practice is not same because it is depends on students abilities that some of them are never fully achieved by many students. This condition always happen even though in their native language.

According to David P. Harris (1969;68) Mostly some teacher would probably have the same direction in recognizing the general components in writing, despite the process of writing has been analyzed in several different matter such as :

1. Content, the substance of writing where the author's express their ideas
2. Form, the content organization
3. Grammar, syntactic patterns and grammatical forms
4. Style, the process of structures and lexical items selection to give a specific tone in writing
5. Mechanics, the using of the language graphic convention

From the explanation above, it can be conclude that the writing process is not easy. It is complicated process. Moreover it is consist of step by step which must be done by the writer. Writing is not a simple process because the writer must have a high skill that combining a variation of several aspects.

According to James Dean Brown (1996;26) language focus into skill areas like reading, writing, listening, and speaking. And language teachers and also testers can benefit from thinking about such subtests in terms of the channel used for communication that is written or oral.

DISCUSSION

Academic writing is a writing that using procedural and mechanism rules. This writing usually use in formal education such as; article, formal letter, thesis, etc. According to Jerry G. Gebhard (1996; 221) the usual things associated with writing are word choice, use of appropriate grammar (such as subject-verb agreement, tense, and article use), syntax (word order), mechanics (e.g., punctuation, spelling, and handwriting), and organization of ideas into a coherent and cohesive form.
